

La Cenerentola

 Angelina, mockingly called Cenerentola by all, gives beggar, Alidoro , bread and coffee.

Her stepsisters  Clorinda and  Tisbe scorn  him and abuse her,
But Alidoro suggests heaven may soon reward her  kindness...

Courtiers announce a ball at which Prince Ramiro will choose a wife.

The sisters wake their father,  Magnifico: all rejoice at a possible royal future!

 Ramiro  arrives, disguised as his valet to observe the women's true natures.

He and Angelina fall in Love at first sight! Valet  Dandini (dressed as a prince seeking a wife)

Compares himself to a bee visiting flowers.

Angelina begs  to go to the ball, but Ramiro sees Magnifico cruelly refuse her.

Once all depart, Alidoro reveals he is really the Prince's tutor.

He whisks Angelina away to attend the ball!

Tisbe and Clorinda pester Dandini to choose one of them ~

 He suggests the remaining sister marry Ramiro, whom they contemptuously  reject.

A mysterious woman arrives - she looks just like Cenerentola!

Angelina refuses  Dandini's advances, revealing she loves  his "valet".

Hearing this, Ramiro is thrilled! Before she departs, she gives him one of her matching bracelets, challenging him to find her again. Ramiro declares love  will guide him.

Crushed, Magnifico learns Dandini is only a valet.

The family returns home; Angelina tends the  hearth.

A storm drives the Prince and Dandini to seek shelter at Magnifico's.

 Seeing Angelina with her bracelet, the Prince is  overjoyed! Alidoro is triumphant - he reminds the sisters how they scorned him as a beggar ~ Angelica for her kind, pure heart

Will ascend the throne. Angelica begs Ramiro to forgive her family.

Born to sorrow, her days by the fire are over ~ Anguish has become joy in a flash of light!

Opera Bracelets - A Dyzines Company © Cindy Battisti 2014